

Ignoring the Pension Protection Act, Our Fund Refuses to Turn Over Info We're Entitled to By Law.

Local 804 Fund Stonewalls on Providing Pension Information

Stand up for your right to pension information.

Vote YES on the Bylaws Reforms at the Local 804 Membership Meeting, Sunday, April 20 at 10 a.m.

The Pension Protection Act (PPA) requires that pension plans make information available to participants so we can watchdog our funds. But unlike other Teamster pension plans, our plan has refused to turn over all the information that we are entitled to under the law.

Local 804 members can help secure our right to get this information by voting YES on the proposed bylaws reforms at the union meeting this Sunday.

One of the proposals requires Local 804 to urge the funds "to make the maximum information available to participants upon request," as provided for by law, including the Pension Protection Act.

In January, Local 804 members requested that the pension fund send the information we are entitled to under the PPA, including actuarial valuation reports and information on the fund's investment performance.

Since then, members have sent multiple letters, called the fund repeatedly and even had pension attorney Ann Thompson contact the fund on their behalf. But to date, the fund has yet to turn over the most important documents requested.

Other Teamster funds, including the Central States Pension Fund, the Western Conference of Teamsters Pension Trust, and the Upstate New York Pension Fund all immediately provided this information upon request. Central States turned over the documents at no charge.

The only pension fund that has stonewalled on providing members information under the PPA is our Local 804 fund. What are they hiding?

Local 804 President Howie Redmond has promised to look into the issue and help members get the documents we're entitled to.

On April 20, Local 804 members can cast a vote in favor of putting pension information in the hands of the membership.

The pension fund is run out of Atlanta, but this is OUR money. The stonewalling has to stop.

Members
LOCAL 804 UNITED!

Informed and United Members Building a Strong Local 804
Not an official website of Teamsters Local 804

804MembersUnited.org is not an official website of Teamsters Local 804 or the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. We are a network of Local 804 members working together for strong contracts and benefits. Visit us online for more information.